Bert's Rescue

By JAMES CONLEY.

Copyright, 1906, by E. C. Parcells.

"Come on, Bert," urged Charlie. "The ice is bully just now. Come on ahead."

"Don't rub it in," pleaded Bert Bentham. "This is my punishment for seeking to astonish the natives with a frock coat and silk hat. The train was so late that no one beheld my glory, and as my trunk will not be here until tomorrow I'm afraid that I shall have to go without my skating."

"But we're the same size," insisted Charlie. "Put on some of my duds."

Bentham winced. It was his quarrel with nature that she had made him but two inches taller than five feet. His little cousin was only thirteen yet, and, as he said, Bert could wear his things. For a moment pride fought with desire, and desire won. He had always been passionately fond of the ice, and it had been a couple of years since he had enjoyed an opportunity of skating. This chance was too good to be lost. It was a beautiful night, and the probabilities were that no one would recognize him. He could slip into the crowd and quickly lose himself.

"Proceed," he said, with mock tragedy. "I shall enjoy my second childhood rather earlier than most men; that is all."

Half an hour later they were on the river. Already a crowd had assembled, for the moon was full and the ice a perfect glare. Charlie's simple "My cousin, fellows," was regarded as sufficient introduction, and presently Bert was skimming over the ice with an easy swing that betokened the experienced skater.

He shot straight up the river, speeding along with no thought of anything save the enjoyment of the skimming motion, and it was half an hour before he realized how far he had gone.

Skating back against the wind was a slower process, and by the time he reached the ferry road again the ice was crowded. He hunted up Charlie and then contented himself with shorter flights, though he kept away from the most crowded part of the ice. He had been skating in artificial rinks for so long that the broad stretch of glassy ice fascinated him, and he had no use for the parties of skaters that clung in groups.

He had just wheeled for a trip up the river when a tiny form shot past him, and almost unconsciously he gave chase. Apparently she was a mere child, but her strong, graceful strokes carried her along with a speed that tested his own qualities, and he skated after her.

Around the bend of the river the sluiceway from the cotton mill emptied into the stream, and for a space the ice was thin. Bert had kept away from this side of the river after the discovery, but now he was so intent upon his chase that he did not realize that the child was bearing dangerously in toward shore until she gave a little cry as she felt the ice crack under her feet.

Instead of keeping ahead she seemed paralyzed with fright and dug her skates into the ice to stop herself. He could hear the new ice giving way as the strain of her weight continued, and with a sudden swerve he dashed in toward her.

He was powerfully built for his size, and it was an easy matter to catch the child up in his arms and carry her out of the danger zone. As they swept along he could feel the ice give under him, and the ominous crackle seemed to follow him. Then the noise stopped as he shot out on to the firm ice, and he ceased skating, coming gradually to a halt.

"That was a risky thing to do," he said sharply as he set her on her feet. "Don't you know about the sluice?"

"I should have remembered," she said as she clung tremblingly to him, "but I heard one of the boys coming after me, and I wanted to beat him. I forgot all about the danger."

"I guess that's the last time you'll forget this season," he said.

"I should say so," she agreed. "It was awfully good of you to act so quickly. Who are you?" she added as he changed position so that the moon shone on his face.

"I'm Charlie Bentham's cousin," he explained.

"Oh, yes," she smiled. "I remember Mrs. Bentham telling us that Charlie had a little cousin coming to visit him. You're a good boy, and I'm awfully grateful to you."

She stood on tiptoe and kissed him squarely on the lips. For a moment Bert was too astonished to speak; then he sped after her.

"Can't I skate with you?" he asked. "Let's skate up as far as the railroad bridge."

"Come ahead," she called as she put out her hand. Bert grasped it, and they glided off. For a few minutes nothing was said. They skated together as perfectly as though through long practice, and they were almost at the bridge.

"You are a newcomer in Maridale?" he asked, breaking the silence. "I don't think I remember you."

"We moved here two years ago," she explained.

"That's it," he declared. "I pride myself on my memory for faces. I have not been able to get up here for a couple of years. My business has kept me pretty close to town."

"Your business?" she echoed, losing her stride and stopping. "Why, Mrs. Bentham said you were the same age as Charlie!"

"That's Ned Collins," he explained. "Ned's coming down for the holidays. I'm Bert Bentham."

"But"— she began, with a glance at his clothes.

"I see," he laughed. "You thought I was a boy because I was wearing one of Charlie's suits. You see, I got a foolish idea that it would be funny to come down all togged out. When Charlie said 'skating' I realized that a frock coat was scarcely a skating costume, so I put on one of his suits. I guess I look pretty much like Charlie That's the worst of being so short."

"And you let me kiss you," she reproached.

"That's all right," he smiled. "I've had little girls kiss me before, you know."

"But I'm not"— she began. Bert started.

"You don't mean to tell me that you"— he gasped.

"I'm nineteen," she said, her eyes filling with tears. "There's nothing to laugh about," she added as Bert shouted. "You let me kiss you, and it was real mean."

"It was real nice," he contradicted, "and I didn't let you. You kissed me before I knew you were going to."

"And now every one will laugh at me," she sobbed.

"The laugh is as much on me as it is on you," he reminded. "I don't think I'm any too anxious to be laughed at."

"And you won't tell?" she demanded, her sobs growing less violent.

"Never," he promised, "not if you kiss me a thousand times. But I thought surely you were a child," he said, glancing at her short skirt.

"I have my dresses all made long, so that I look taller," she explained, "but they are awfully in the way when I skate, so I borrowed one from my sister."

"I guess it's a standoff," he declared. "We fooled each other and ourselves. But we haven't reached the bridge yet."

He held out his hand, and she slipped hers into it. Somehow the sense of a secret between them gave her a feeling of security, and her embarrassment soon wore off. Before they turned she was chatting away as though he had known her all his life.

They were on the ice again the next morning, and Bert went home a slave to her charms. Alice Vinton was the first woman he had ever seriously cared for, and he made such an active courtship that on the last night of his stay, as they turned at the railroad bridge, which marked the limit of their progress, he held her hand for an instant.

"I'm going home tomorrow," he said, "and I want to take back with me your promise that I may come for you in the spring. Will you promise, dear?"

For answer she reached up and kissed him as she had done on the night of their meeting. But this time there was no mistake of identity.

Her Serious Programme.

"I am going to have a little girl baby, and when she is three years old I am going to kill myself."

This startling remark came from the lips of a seven-year-old north side girl and was made with no more demonstration than if she had remarked that she was going to take one of her dollies out for a walk.

"My, my!" said her father. "What in the world possessed you to make such a remark?"

"Well, papa," replied the little miss, "I have just been reading a lovely story about how a little girl only three years old put fresh flowers every day on her dear dead mother's grave, and her mother had killed herself, and I thought how nice it would be to have a little girl put beautiful flowers on my grave."

"Oh!" said her father reflectively. "I guess you had better play outdoors more and do a little less reading."—Columbus Dispatch.

Jeweler's Bit of Advice.

"I think I'll have to bring her in and let her choose," said the embarrassed young man as he looked hopelessly at the diamonds spread out on the table.

"Pardon me for a bit of advice," the jeweler said earnestly, leaning forward, "but I've had a lot of experience in such matters. If you pick it out yourself and take it to her she'll surely be satisfied. Always are. But if she comes here and sees bigger, handsomer rings she won't be contented with the one you can afford. The $500 or $800 ring she sees will stay by her. We've often lost sales that way. I've frequently seen the young woman pick out a ring that the man obviously couldn't afford, and he would find some excuse for not buying it."

Then the young man said he thought he might as well decide on that $110 trifle at once.—Kansas City Star.

Came Near Missing the Abbey.

"Well, it was worth coming the few miles for," said the American as he puffed a cigar and drank his coffee outside the restaurant at Mount St. Michael. "They told me that I ought to come here and eat an omelet, and that omelet was real good. Now, I expect there's not much more to do on this little rock, and so I'll be getting back to the motor."

"But," suggested his English companion of the moment, "have you seen the abbey?"

"Abbey!" came the sharp reply. "Have they got an abbey on this bit of stone? No, I've not seen that, and they didn't tell me anything about an abbey. They all talked about the omelet. But if you tell me that I ought to see the abbey, then I'll just have to stay half an hour and have a look at the place, but it'll make me late for dinner, I guess."—Westminster Gazette.

FATE AND ANDREW JACKSON.

What Going West, Not East, Meant to the Fiery Lawyer.

During the young manhood of Andrew Jackson, when he rode the circuit in Tennessee, knowing more law than most of his brethren at the bar, afraid of nothing on earth, ready to challenge to a duel some trained lawyer from the older settlements who that lawyer trespassed upon his own preserves and made fun of his ignorance—as Waightstill Avery did—thus holding his ground against all comers, partly by brute force and partly by mental superiority, he was probably nearer to happiness than he ever was afterward.

From court to court he rode his race horse, pistols in holsters, carrying his gun and his pack of hounds, ready for the courthouse, ready for the deer chase, ready for the shooting match, ready for the horse race, ready for the house raising and log rolling, ready to go out himself and drag into the courthouse the desperado whom the sheriff feared to arrest.

Rough and tumble times these were in backwoods Tennessee, with rude and lawless elements boiling and bubbling in that inevitable period of unrest and struggle which prevails in border settlements before the community takes form and everybody smugly congratulates everybody else on the "reign of law and order."

In just such a state of society young Jackson was peculiarly fitted to lead, dominate and prosper.

Had he gone eastward instead of westward, had he cast in his lot with the lawyers that were striving for advancement in the cities of the original thirteen seaboard states, nothing is more certain than that the world would never have heard of him.

His lack of knowledge of the law would have made him easy prey to those who were masters of this profession. His fiery temper would have kept him constantly in battle array, and in fighting those lawyers who got the better of him in the citation of legal authorities he would, in the nature of things, have met the wrong man sooner or later.—Watson's Magazine.

Two Famous Kisses.

History has taken notice of some famous kisses. There was that which Queen Margaret gave to Alain Chartier over 300 years ago, the memory of which is fresh in the minds of men if not on their lips. Chartier was a poet, but he was the ugliest man personally in all "the sunny land of France." The queen, with her maids, one day found him asleep and, bending over him, kissed his dreaming lips. Turning to her maids, she prettily said: "I kiss not the man. I kiss the soul that sings."

Two centuries later Voltaire, another Frenchman and also a poet, was publicly kissed in the stage box of the theater by the young and lovely Countess de Villars, but in his case the lady gave the kiss not as a voluntary tribute to genius, but in obedience to the commands of the claque in the pit, who, mad with enthusiasm for the poet's "Merope," bade her kiss him.

Baited the Wrong Fish.

It happens sometimes that the cure is worse than the disease. It was in the case of the mother who tried to break her little Theodore of the habit of taking sweets off the sideboard. "We often have bonbons when there are guests to luncheon," she said, "and although Theodore promises not to touch them he always does."

"You might do as I did in the same circumstances," suggested the neighbor, smiling reminiscently.

"What did you do?"

"I carefully removed the inside filling from a chocolate drop and stuffed the shell with red pepper."

"Did it work?"

"It might have worked," replied the neighbor, "if Johnny had happened to spy it. As it was, I forgot all about it in the press of other matters, and at dinner time the guest of the evening got it."

Conscientious.

At a cricket match, Married versus Single, the former took first innings, and chiefly by the aid of some blind hits by one of the players, named Jones, made a score of 84. Just as the bachelors were about to commence their innings news of a local railway accident, in which some of the passengers had been killed, reached the field.

"I'm in a bit of a quandary," said Jones to the curate who had organized the match. "My missus was in that train."

"Dear me. I'm sorry to hear it," was the reply. "You are anxious to get away, of course?"

"Well, no, sir. It ain't that. I was only thinking if anything has happened to my Mary I ought to be playing for the single chaps."—London Queen.

AN EMERGENCY SPEECH.

It Soothed the Indians and Probably Saved General Gaines.

People often say very funny things in times of emergency. It was fortunate for the general whose conciliatory efforts are described in Mrs. Jefferson Davis' life of her husband, that the Indians with whom the men were dealing had no great sense of humor. Lieutenant Davis, then on the staff of General Gaines, had accompanied his superior officer to a conference with the chiefs of the Sac nation.

The council met in a tent. The warriors, decked with war paint and feathers, sat scowling and silent, their arms stacked near by. Seated with them was a dark old woman, shrunken to a mere skeleton, clothed in white woolen. She held herself with great majesty of mien.

The general began the council in a hesitating manner. He explained that it was necessary for the Indians to move on, for the white man must have the territory. At this the old squaw became greatly excited and began speaking with vehemence. She declared that the Sacs must die on their own hunting ground. The general showed considerable irritation at her tirade and spoke to the interpreter.

"Tell her—a—that—a—woman is not expected to interfere between the—a—white and Indian braves. She must be silent."

The squaw rose from her seat with great impressiveness and stretched her skinny arms above her head with a wild gesture.

"Does he say I am to be silent in the councils of my people? In these veins runs the blood of the last of the Sac kings. It is my right to speak."

The chiefs rose about her, stirred by her words, gesticulating angrily. It was plain that trouble was at hand, and the Indians far outnumbered the whites.

The general calmly listened until the speech was interpreted. Then he rose, with a sweep of the hand, to command silence.

"Mr. Interpreter," he said, "tell her—a—that—a—my mother was—a woman."

This revelation brought grunts of satisfaction from the Indians, and the frankness of the statement pleased the old princess. Order was restored, and the council proceeded with the business in hand.

A Costly Joke.

A woman of Bochum, says a Vienna dispatch, wishing to give her young nephew, living in a neighboring town, a pleasant surprise, bought a little tablet of chocolate and posted it to him in an envelope marked "Value $25,000." The package, on account of its high declared value, attracted the notice of the postal authorities, who demanded $4 extra fee on delivery. The nephew, suspecting a hoax, refused the letter, which was duly returned to Bochum and the sender advised. The woman, half ashamed, declared that the envelope contained nothing of real value, but it was pointed out to her that the contents, whatever they might be, were declared to be worth $25,000 and she must pay. The poor woman signed the receipt, but then was told, to her dismay, that a double fee had been incurred owing to the return of the letter. She paid $8 without further complaint.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Aletonius Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "of Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted, in the treatment of diseases peculiar to woman it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa, suppressed or absent monthly periods, a dull pain or aching accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present, no invalid woman can do better than take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, one of the leading ingredients of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * and general debilitation, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

Inflated Stories Good and Bad.

The recorder of facts as they exist to-day is prone to exaggerate conditions whether good or bad. The month of April naturally recalls the dread catastrophe of last year to those of us that experienced the event which wrought such havoc on this coast. As terrible as the happening was, it wasn't harrowing enough for many of the recorders of it, and wild exaggeration of the scenes following appeared in the press throughout the world. Because of the readiness of writers, story tellers and historians to add to the awful sensational and realistic facts, it is indeed a relief to note that our own Jack London confesses that his facile pen, capable of all kinds of fervid and highly colored imagination, refused to be raised to a higher power of exaggeration when confronted by the realism of last April. What could the pen supply or add to those scenes? They were the limit of the sensational, yet some literary perverts yearned for more distortion which they manufactured.

To-day, after it is all past and the catastrophe is worn threadbare for journalistic sensationalists, the foolish, gloating, gleeful optimist is at work. A recent number of one of our California magazines is devoted to the recording of the marvelous growth and prosperity of San Francisco since the quake. The cheerful, hopeful, boosting tone that characterizes each article and the total ignoring of the seamy side of San Francisco's transitional period is permissable and commendable, but one story is fiction worse confounded. It relates to the high wages and wonderfully prosperous labor conditions of our metropolis, and so tempting do opportunities appear therein that workingmen from New York to Malta will soon pour into this Utopia, and maidens, widows and spinsters from all over the globe will hasten hither to marry some of our many $10 a day mechanics. We will promise to do the best we can for all these strangers who are lured to California by this kind of literature, but many will have to be content to harvest our crops in the country and marry farmers who boast no inflated pocket books or $10 a day incomes.

Jealous Rivalry.

Those of us who stay at home and never get out of the home town get biased and provincial notions and either knock local conditions or are the promoters of a jealous rivalry which is unhealthy for any section. Travel and intercourse with the outside world is the only remedy for such a condition. If we go East we think kindly of any and all things Californian. When in the State we discriminate between southern and northern California, between Oakland and San Francisco or Santa Rosa and Petaluma. As a result there is not the harmony and pulling together that there should be. Each section is aiming to build itself up on some rival locality's loss. They are not ready to stand on their merits. They affirm their own advantages in one breath and knock their rival in the next.

Nothing makes one feel so good and is such a moral tonic as to be free of jealousy and proud of each other's successes.

We take off our hat to Petaluma, for far from this county we heard her praises sung for hospitality lately dispensed to a lodge of Elks. In answer to the compliment we had the opportunity to say that such hospitality was common to Sonoma county and that we had the pleasure of being a good and friendly neighbor to the town of hens and factories.

THE best example of the thrifty wife who would not waste a morsel—the woman who got a beefsteak so tough that she gave her husband a black eye just to utilize the beef.

COUNTY NEWS ITEMS.

Tina Haws filed an action in the Superior Court of this county Wednesday, asking the court to annul the marriage bonds between herself and William R. Haws. Ed. M. Norton of Healdsburg is the attorney for plaintiff.

Justice A. J. Atchinson of Santa Rosa performed the marriage ceremony Wednesday afternoon for David L. Gibson of Kenwood and Miss Maud Florence Knox of Santa Rosa. The happy couple will reside in Kenwood.

Judge James W. Oates of Santa Rosa drew the will of the late Geo. W. Call, which was presented to the Superior Court Tuesday between pieces of glass, in order that it might be preserved and admitted to probate. Judge Oates inspected the document Tuesday, and found that it was badly baked while in the safe deposit vault and ready to crumble to pieces at the touch, it was remarkably preserved between the glass. The handwriting of the testator, of Judge Oates and Attorney Joseph P. Berry, the subscribing witnesses, is legible, and the unique document will undoubtedly be admitted to probate. The numbering of the pages, which is done in Judge Oates handwriting, is clear and plain in the burned papers.

The Connecticut Fire Insurance Company of Hartford was made defendant in four suits filed in Santa Rosa by City Attorney Thos. J. Geary Wednesday afternoon. The complaints allege that the company had accepted moneys from the plaintiffs and issued their policies on the stocks owned by the plaintiffs, and that these stocks were destroyed in the fire of April 18th. No part of any of the amounts of insurance have been settled and judgments are asked for the full amounts of the policies. The plaintiffs are Mrs. Naomi E. Davis, executrix of the will of H. S. Davis, the deceased having had a policy calling for $800 in insurance; Max Rosenberg, $2,000; O. Fountain and Savings Bank of Santa Rosa, $1,000, and F. C. Loomis, $1,000.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional di ease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

YENNI-ADLER CASE DISMISSED TUESDAY.

Attorneys for Plaintiff and Defendant Settle Case Out of Court.

The assault case of Yenni vs. Adler, after several postponements in Judge Small's Court, was finally dismissed last Tuesday. The arrest of Adler followed an assault made by him on Yenni over some private differences between the men. The dismissal saved the county considerable expense as well as the parties to the suit who until a few short months ago were on very friendly terms.

The Bids Were Rejected.

The Board of Supervisors on Thursday last opened bids for the construction of Sonoma county's new $280,000 court house. There were four bidders. The bids varied between $336,908.50 and $446,453.

The very lowest bid exceeded the estimated cost of the building nearly $57 000 while the highest bid exceeded the architect's estimate $166,453. This being the case, the Supervisors very properly rejected all the bids.

The plans will now be modified so as to bring the cost of the building down to something near the figures submitted to the voters when they supported the $280,000 court house bond issue last fall.

Petaluma Trustees Knock Out Prize Fighters.

The City Trustees of Petaluma delivered a solar plexus blow to the promoters of prize fights in that city. They have passed an ordinance placing a license of $500 on every main event to take place in a prize ring in that city and $250 for each preliminary. This means that prize fighting in that town is down and out for keeps.

ELECTRIC RAILWAY SEEMS AT HAND.

Eastern Capitalists to Finance Road to Tap Marin, Sonoma, Napa and Lake Counties.

Advices from San Francisco state that a number of Eastern capitalists who are now stopping at the Majestic Hotel in that city, after looking over the field, have decided to finance the proposed electric railway which is to tap Marin, Sonoma, Napa and Lake counties. These capitalists hail from Baltimore, Md., and are J. W. Ellard, D B. Banks, J. B. Scott and A. L. Shreve.

The gentlemen who have been promoting the proposed road and who succeeded in financing the scheme are Messrs. Richard Hotaling, W. M. Rank and George Dillman of San Francisco.

It is proposed to make the terminal of the new electric railway on Richardson's bay opposite Sausalito in Marin county. The Northwestern Pacific will be paralleled into San Rafael. From there the road will run through Marin, Sonoma and Napa counties.

In passing through this county it is said the road will in all probability tap Sonoma Valley, but that will depend in a great measure on the efforts of its people to secure the road. If they wait for the proposed line to come to them they may have to wait a long time. Otherwise--why otherwise.

Sonoma Literary Society.

The regular meeting of the Sonoma Literary Society was held at the residence of Fred'k T. Duhring on last Monday evening, with a goodly number present. The semi-annual election of officers resulted in the following choice: President, Mrs. T. A. Lewis; Vice-President, F. T. Duhring; Secretary, Richard A. Piatt; Treasurer, Miss Florence Murphy; two members of the Program Committee also were elected, Miss Doris Clewe and Dr. Van Amringe.

The program for the evening consisted chiefly of readings of scenes from the "Merchant of Venice." This was followed by a short drill in parliamentary procedure, after which games were played. Pleasing songs were rendered by a quartet composed of the Misses Weber, Davis and Waterman.

The next meeting, at the invitation of Miss Davis, will be held at the residence of Mrs. Hope, on Monday evening, April 15th, and all members and their friends are cordially invited to attend.

Broke an Arm.

Miss Vera Buchan, eldest daughter of Mrs. Kate Buchan, had her right arm broken at the elbow last Saturday morning. The accident was caused by the young lady slipping and falling heavily upon the arm. Dr. Leix set the broken bones and it will be sometime before his patient will be able to use the arm, as the break is a bad one two bones being fractured.

NEW NATURALIZATION LAWS IN FORCE.

Last Congress Makes Important Change of Interest to Naturalized American Citizens.

A copy of the new naturalization laws passed by the last Congress is in our hands. The laws provide that where a naturalized citizen returns to the country from which he came and remains there for two years or remains in any other foreign country for five years, he loses his naturalization. Commissioner North is of the opinion that, under the new law, a Chinese born in this country even if he returns to China in his infancy, is always an American citizen, which is contrary to a recent ruling of the department.

The law states that no American citizen shall be allowed to expatriate himself while this country is at war.

Any American woman who marries a foreigner takes the nationality of her husband, and at the termination of marital relations she may resume her American citizenship.

A child born without the United States of alien parentage shall be deemed a citizen of the United States by virtue of naturalization of the parents.

Property Changes Hands.

Prepare This Yourself.

For those who have any form of blood disorders; who want new, rich blood and plenty of it, try this:

Fluid Extract of Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup of Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. Any good pharmacy can supply the ingredients at small cost.

This prescription which, when made up, is called "The Vegetable Treatment;" by others the "Cyclone Blood Purifier." It acts gently and certainly does wonders for some people who are sickly, weak and out of sorts, and is known to relieve serious, long-standing cases of rheumatism and chronic backache quickly.

Make some up and try it.

The best is Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the best because it does the most good.

While it makes the blood pure, fresh and lively, it tones the stomach to better digestion, creates an appetite, stimulates the kidneys and liver, gives new brain, nerve and digestive strength.

An unequaled list of cures—40,366 testimonials in two years—proves its merit.

Mrs. J. F. Gee, 50 Gould Street, Stoneham, Mass., says: "In 25 years experience I have never known Hood's Sarsaparilla to fail, for spring humors and as a general blood purifier; it cures scrofula, eczema; has no equal as a general spring medicine. It gives me genuine satisfaction to say this."

Sarsatabs—For those who prefer medicine in tablet form, Hood's Sarsaparilla is now put up in chocolated tablets called Sarsatabs, as well as in the usual liquid form. Sarsatabs have identically the same curative properties as the liquid form, besides accuracy of dose, convenience, economy,—there being no loss by evaporation, breakage, or leakage. Sold by druggists or sent by mail. C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass.

A MODERN OLD STORY

[Original.]

Elijah Chubb, who wrote over the pseudonym of Lionel Malcolm, had been writing realistic stories wherein nothing happened, the humdrum of life went on as it really is, people marrying and dying in the ordinary way, till he was wearied. He determined to try his hand at the old fashioned tale of complicated events. He realized that his story, though old in method, must be new in substance. Unfortunately he could not overcome literary habits that had controlled him for years. Here is the result of his labor:

An automobile, twenty horsepower and of the latest pattern, stood before the door of a stately mansion near the border line between New York and Pennsylvania. Within the house two people on the very threshold of life, a youth of eighteen in leather dress and a maiden of sixteen en princesse, stood in a drawing room furnished in Louis Quatorze style. At the windows were curtains of rich renaissance lace. Over those hung heavy satin brocade. The girl was looking up timidly into the youth's face.

"Luella," he said, taking both her hands in his, "I have a confession to make."

"Make it," she replied, with a shudder.

"I am a married man."

She moaned a low, deep, melancholy moan.

"I was married at eighteen, divorced in South Dakota at eighteen and six months, and my former wife lives in Pennsylvania. A suit for alimony has established the fact that the Pennsylvania laws do not recognize the South Dakota divorce. I am free to wed you here. In Pennsylvania my marriage would be bigamy."

Her head fell on his shoulder. He raised her face and saw that she was weeping. Then she spoke:

"I, too, Lawrence, have a confession to make. I was married at fifteen and only secured my divorce a month ago, as in your case, in Dakota. My husband has contested the divorce in Pennsylvania, from which state we have but recently removed, and lost his suit. There I am free to marry again. But, alas, he has followed me here, and my lawyer tells me that the New York laws make me still his wife."

She had no sooner spoken than there was a sharp ring at the telephone. Going to the instrument, she took up the receiver and said softly:

"Hello!"

After listening a few moments she dropped the receiver, staggering, when her lover caught her in his arms.

"Heavens!" she cried. "It was my lawyer. He says that my divorced husband has got an order for me to show cause for something or other and I must get out of the jurisdiction of the court. What shall I do?"

"My automobile is at the door. Let us go at once."

As she passed through the hall she took up a dust proof wrap and put on a pair of goggles, as did her lover. Both jumped into the machine standing at the door and sped away at twice the speed allowed by the city ordinances.

"Dearest," he said, "why should loving hearts regard these conflicting laws? Let us be married and defy them."

Her head dropped upon his leather sleeve.

Passing the rectory of St. James' church, he saw the rector coming down the steps. Drawing up at the sidewalk, the fugitive hastily asked him to perform the marriage ceremony. Lawrence, turning his head anxiously, saw an automobile coming rapidly down the street. With a herculean effort he pulled the dominie into the machine and was off like the wind.

"We are followed by an officer of the court," he explained, "and cannot stop for marriage. Marry us as we go."

The dominie demurred to such an unusual proceeding, but after much persuasion consented and performed the ceremony. Scarcely had he pronounced the couple man and wife when Lawrence gave a groan.

"What is it dearest?" asked his wife—that is, if she was his wife.

"We are headed southward and have either passed or are passing or about to pass the Pennsylvania line."

"There my marriage is legal," she said quickly.

"And there I am a bigamist."

"What shall we do?"

"We cannot turn. We are followed too closely. The slightest curve would upset the machine. We must go on. Thank heaven, dearest, you will be free from these odious laws."

"And you will be liable to arrest?"

Far in the distance appeared a cloud of dust, a cloud as large as a man's hand, which the fugitives supposed was nothing to them but a coming automobile which they must pass by, keeping to the right as the law directs. Alas, how little we know what is in store for us! Just before meeting the coming machine Lawrence saw an opportunity to take a road to the left which curved and would enable him to go northward without upsetting. The automobile behind had gained perceptibly and was close at hand, Lawrence swerved to the left, which was the right of the coming machine. The two met going at a rate of a mile a minute, and the machine coming from the north plunged into the two wrecks. All were killed.

ENGLISHMAN GOT A SHOCK.

Cultured Chinaman Made Him Lose His Sense of Superiority.

A writer in London M. A. P. tells of meeting Sir Chi Chen, afterward the Chinese embassador to London, in Tientsin when the latter was plain Mr. Lo Feng Luh, an undersecretary of state in the entourage of the viceroy of the province, Li Hung Chang. "My own mission was to the 'Bismarck of China,' as the one statesman in faroff Cathay was known at the time, which was before the fall," says the writer, "and Mr. Lo Feng Luh had been deputized to serve me in the double capacity of cicerone and interpreter.

"We sat sipping tea in the long wait which in Chinese court life follows the announcement of your name and precedes your reception, and is supposed to deepen your respect for the great man of whom you have sought an audience and to deaden in yourself any lingering consciousness of British superiority. Then it was that Mr. Lo Feng Luh suddenly opened up his battery of questions and criticism upon the leading men of letters, philosophers and theologians of Europe. His inquiries were not, indeed, of the alumni of one nation, but of many, and when he had done with Spencer, Huxley, Darwin, the Elizabethan poets, the theology of Dollinger, the writing of Comte, the plays of Moliere, he wafted his way to America and was promptly at home with Oliver Wendell Holmes, James Russell Lowell and the funny stories of Mr. Chauncey Depew."

Exposure

To cold draughts of air, to keen and cutting winds, sudden changes of the temperature, scanty clothing, undue exposure of the throat and neck after public speaking and singing, bring on coughs and colds. Ballard's Horehound Syrup is the best cure. Mrs. A. Barr, Houston, Texas, writes Jan. 31, 1902: "One bottle of Ballard's Horehound Syrup cured me of a very bad cough. It is very pleasant to take." Sold by L. S. Simmons.

SECRETS OF THE BODY.

The Progress Science Has Made In Two Hundred Years.

A century ago the work of the modern surgeon would have been denounced by the theologians, who then ruled mankind, as audacious intrusions into the exclusive jurisdiction of God. Two centuries ago, or, at the furthest, three, the man of science who would take out the viscera of a man, cut out their disease and put them back would have been fortunate to escape the stake or the block. But the audacious invader of the secrets of the body, the beneficent healer who, with his vial or his knife, lessens the miseries of humanity, diminishes or destroys pain, prolongs life and smooths its pathway to the grave—this is now the man who appeals most strongly to his fellow beings. For him and his training the captains of industry are pouring out their millions, building him colleges and laboratories, endowing professorships, while the world at large hails him as a man of power and influence at a time when wealth is accumulating and when men are not decaying. More and more, very likely, we shall see the strong men of the college classes choosing medicine, although the time has not yet come for domination over the lawyers who is now engaged in settling the direction and the form in which the captains of industry shall carry on their development of the world's wealth. The time seems to be coming, however, when the indefinite prolongation of human life and the destruction of the enemies of human health, a work which almost suggests the creative power, will be the task that will call for and will receive the service of the best training of our colleges and universities—that is, when the appeal of medicine and surgery will be addressed inevitably to the best in every college class, just as once the call came from the ministry and then from the bench and bar and senate house.—Harper's Weekly.

The Abbe's Criticism.

An American lady residing in Rome presented to a friend, who is an abbe an intellectual man and familiar with English, although no traveler, a copy of one of Mary Wilkins' New England stories.

"The author of this, my dear friend," she said, "is the best portrayer of New England character we have. No other writer has caught so well the charm of the place and the people. I hope you will like it."

The abbe took the book and thanked her. In a few days he came again and returned it gingerly, saying a word or two of thanks.

"Were you not pleased with the quaint portrayal of the life?" asked the lady.

"You say this is a faithful portrayal of life in New England?"

"Very faithful indeed,"

The abbe sighed and said, with deep sympathy, "How sad!"—Reader Magazine.

Listen

and remember the next time you suffer from pain—caused by damp weather—when your head nearly bursts from neuralgia—try Ballard's Snow Liniment. It will cure you. A prominent business man of Hempstead, Texas, writes: "I have used your liniment. Previous to using it I was a great sufferer from rheumatism and neuralgia. I am pleased to say I am free from these complaints. I am sure I owe this to your liniment." Sold at Simmons' drug store.

A Positive Necessity.

Having to lay upon my bed for 14 days from a severely bruised leg, I only found relief when I used a bottle of Ballard's Snow Liniment. I can cheerfully recommend it as the best medicine for bruises ever sent to the afflicted. It has become a positive necessity upon myself. 25c, 50c and $1. Sold at Simmons' drug store.

The Daily Call and Index-Tribune $9 per year for both papers.

$8.50 PUNCTURE-PROOF TIRES ONLY $4.80 PER PAIR

Regular Price $8.50 per pair. To Introduce We Will Sell You a Sample Pair for Only $4.80 NAILS, TACKS OR GLASS WON'T LET OUT THE AIR

(CASH WITH ORDER $4.60)

NO MORE TROUBLE FROM PUNCTURES.

Result of 15 years experience in tire making. No danger from THORNS, CACTUS, PINS, NAILS, TACKS or GLASS. Serious punctures, like intentional knife cuts, can be vulcanized like any other tire.

Notice the thick rubber tread "A" and puncture strips "B" and "D," also rim strip "H" to prevent rim cutting. This tire will outlast any other make—SOFT, ELASTIC and EASY RIDING.

DESCRIPTION: Made in all sizes. It is lively and easy riding, very durable and lined inside with a special quality of rubber, which never becomes porous and which closes up small punctures without allowing the air to escape. We have hundreds of letters from satisfied customers stating that their tires have only been pumped up once or twice in a whole season. They weigh no more than an ordinary tire, the puncture resisting qualities being given by several layers of thin, specially prepared fabric on the tread. That "Holding Back" sensation commonly felt when riding on asphalt or soft roads is overcome by the patent "Basket Weave" tread which prevents all air from being squeezed out between the tire and the road thus overcoming all suction. The regular price of these tires is $8.50 per pair, but for advertising purposes we are making a special factory price to the rider of only $4.80 per pair. All orders shipped same day letter is received. We ship C.O.D. on approval. You do not pay a cent until you have examined and found them strictly as represented.

We will allow a cash discount of 5 per cent (thereby making the price $4.55 per pair) if you send FULL CASH WITH ORDER and encose this advertisement. We will also send one nickel plated brass hand pump and two Sampson metal puncture closers on full paid orders (these metal puncture closers to be used in case of intentional knife cuts or heavy gashes). Tires to be returned at OUR expense if for any reason they are not satisfactory on examination.

We are perfectly reliable and money sent to us is as safe as in a bank. Ask your Postmaster, Banker, Express or Freight Agent or the Editor of this paper about us. If you order a pair of these tires, you will find that they will ride easier, run faster, wear better, last longer and look finer than any tire you have ever used or seen at any price. We know that you will be so well pleased that when you want a bicycle you will give us your order. We want you to send us a small trial order at once, hence this remarkable tire offer.

COASTER-BRAKES, built-up-wheels, saddles, pedals, parts and repairs, and everything in the bicycle line are sold by us at half the usual prices charged by dealers and repair men. Write for our big SUNDRY catalogue.

DO NOT WAIT but write us a postal today. DO NOT THINK OF BUYING a bicycle or a pair of tires from anyone until you know the new and wonderful offers we are making. It only costs a postal to learn everything. Write it NOW.
